JEAN-FRANÇOIS FAÛ

Conversion to Islam was voluntary, whereas conversion to Christianity was forced and painful.

› CONVERSIONS DES TRIBUS JUIVES AU CHRISTIANISME PUIS À L'ISLAM : PÉNINSULE ARABIQUE VI^E- XIV^E SIÈCLES

CONVERTING FROM JUDAISM TO CHRISTIANITY AND ISLAM RELIGION IN THE ARABIAN PENINSULA, 500—1400 AD

From the beginning of the 6th century, the two principal religions of the Arabian Peninsula, Judaism and Christianity, were brought into conflict by 2 forces: competing missionary activities and political rivalry. After the overthrow of the Jewish Kingdom of Arabia in 525 AD, both the Jewish religion and Jewish identity suffered at the hands of the new ruling powers: first Christian, then Muslim.

LUCIEN-JEAN BORD

A study of the role of music in the ancient world that adds to our understanding of civilization.

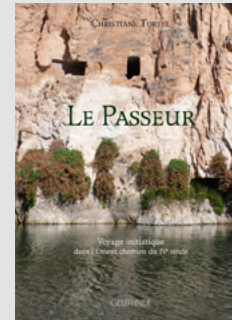

› LA MUSIQUE DANS LE PROCHE-ORIENT ANCIEN

MUSIC IN THE NEAR EAST BEFORE THE 2ND CENTURY BC

Music is the universal language of humanity, but like language, the way we express ourselves by singing, dancing, and playing instruments has changed over the centuries. This study covers some 2,000 years, between the life of Enheduanna, the composer princess, and the writing of the Book of Daniel.
