JULIA DECK

The acerbic chronicle of the life of an imaginary star and his entourage.

› MONUMENT NATIONAL

NATIONAL MONUMENT

At the chateau, there's the father, an old French film star. There's the young wife, former Miss Côte d'Azur, totally devoted to her family and world peace. Then there are the twins, the half-sister. As for the money, it's been prudently set aside in offshore accounts. At the chateau, there's also the steward, the nanny, the coach, the cook, the gardener, the driver. We'd better keep an eye on them. Especially if air traffic comes to a grinding standstill and our offshore accounts are suddenly dangerously far away.

PIERRE BAYARD

The fifth work by the literary detective Pierre Bayard dives into the very origin of the genre: Oedipus Rex, and the implications of his discoveries are incalculable.

› ŒDIPE N'EST PAS COUPABLE

OEDIPUS IS INNOCENT

Ever since Antiquity and even more so since Freud, it has been said that Oedipus killed his father. But upon further examination, that accusation doesn't stand up. By rigorously investigating the circumstances of the murder and revealing the killer's identity, this book demonstrates that whole sections of our culture are based on a judicial error.

GEORGES DIDI-HUBERMAN

The archives from the Warsaw ghetto under the attentive expert eye of the great humanist of our era, Georges Didi-Huberman.

› ÉPARSES : VOYAGE DANS LES PAPIERS DU GHETTO DE VARSOVIE

SCATTERED JOURNEY INTO THE PAPERS OF THE WARSAW GHETTO

This is the "photo-story" of a journey into the papers of the Warsaw ghetto. A tentative to take a first look at a corpus of never-before-seen images gathered clandestinely by Emanuel Ringelblum and his comrades from the Oyneg Shabes group between 1939 and 1943. These images are inseparable from an archive of 35,000 pages of stories, statistics, testimony, poems, popular songs, children's assignments from the clandestine schools, or letters thrown from the cattle cars on their way to Treblinka...

LAURENT MAUVIGNIER

What are those strangers doing at the farm, and what do they want from the Bergogne family?

› HISTOIRES DE LA NUIT

STORIES IN THE NIGHT

Almost nothing is left of La Bassée: a village center and a few hamlets, including the one occupied by Bergogne, his wife Marion, and their daughter Ida, as well as a neighbor, Christine, an artist who moved there a few years ago. Everyone is busy getting ready for Marion's birthday, who is celebrating her fortieth birthday. But in the midst of the preparations, strangers begin to prowl around the house.

TANGUY VIEL

Tanguy Viel delicately dissects the control mechanisms wielded by a powerful man over a young woman.

› LA FILLE QU'ON APPELLE

THE GIRL YOU CALL

When he's not in a boxing ring, Max Le Corre is the driver for the city's mayor. So when his 20-year-old daughter Laura moves back in with him, Max decides to ask the mayor to help her find lodging.
