FURIES

The destinies of a young archeologist (who has been led astray to antiquities trafficking) and a Syrian firefighter-turned-gravedigger collide in the context of war. Between that which she uncovers and that which he buries lies the history of a people that believed in its revolution.

SÉMI

SEMI

Tetsuo and Fujiko Niré have been living in a retirement home ever since, a few years ago, Fujiko started to develop symptoms of Alzheimer's. Over forty years ago, they united their lives through an arranged marriage, founded a family, and have led a peaceful life together. But when she wakes up that morning, Fujiko does not recognize her husband. Initially very upset, Tetsuo eventually sets out to re-conquer this woman who now sees him as a stranger.

LA TRAVERSÉE DES TEMPS (TOME 2)
- LA PORTE DU CIELTHE TIME
TRAVELER
(BOOK 2)
THE GATE TO HEAVEN

The Time Traveler is an immense work, recounting the journey of a man who, one morning, discovers that he is immortal. In Lost Paradise, the first book of The Time Traveler, Noam awakened his first memories in a lakeside village, eight thousand years ago. In The Gate to Heaven, he recalls the epic of the turbulent and captivating Babel in the 3rd millennium BC, where he was introduced to Mesopotamian writing, astronomy, and architecture. Not to mention love, when it's destined to last forever.

This epistolary coming-of-age novel is a sensitive ode to the power of writing, worlds away from emails and instant conversations.

} LES LETTRES D'ESTHER

ESTHER'S LETTERS

Esther, a bookseller in the north of France, decides to set up an epistolary writing workshop in memory of the correspondence she used to keep with her father. Five people respond to her ad: 70-year-old Jeanne, who is angrier than ever at the excesses of modern society; Juliette and Nicolas, a couple torn apart by post-natal depression; Jean, a cynical businessman; and Samuel, a guilt-ridden teenager, who is unable to grieve for his brother. Letter by letter, they break their solitude, open their hearts, and exorcise their fears and sorrow.

REFUGE

When her grandmother Suzanne dies, Sandrine makes her way to the gray and cold island where she lived to retrieve Suzanne's belongings. She discovers a handful of inhabitants who settled there at the end of WWII, like Suzanne. In just a few hours, Sandrine realizes that the inhabitants are hiding a secret, and are scared. A few days later, Sandrine is found wandering a beach on the mainland, her clothes covered in someone else's blood, mumbling something about an island. But nobody has ever heard of the island in question.

SUCH FEROCIOUS BEASTS

This collection of short stories is structured like a bestiary in which the fantastic deciphers the secret urges and obscure recesses of the human heart. In this foreign universe, we are invited to explore our world, divided and ruled by conflicts between the poor and the powerful, women and men, children and adults, racism and war. But there is also a hidden side, with dark humor and hybrid creatures. The frontier becomes permeable between the human and the animal, dreams and facts, oneself and the other.

COURAGE OF DREAMERS

In a desolate lunar landscape, a woman is running away from a camp. She has been trapped there since a Site blew up, violently contaminating her. After undergoing a series of scientific experiments, she pretended to be dead in order to escape. The anonymous narrator seeks to regain her freedom and memories, which gradually resurface. Although it is not mentioned, the COVID-19 pandemic looms over this novel. The dreamer awakens in the end, yet the dream strikingly resonates with our current reality.

THE LEGEND OF THE BUTTERFLIES WITH OPEN WINGS

Nanna Tuda is telling her grandchildren the story of Tihya. This beautiful warrior united the Berber tribes and fiercely defended the freedom of her people in the face of the early Muslim conquests while Roman power was on the wane. All of this without putting her life on hold as a woman, lover, and mother... A tale in which some will recognize Dihya, Al-Kahina, the warrior queen of the Aures Mountains, whose life has been transformed by generations of storytellers over the centuries.

DREAMING UPRIGHT

A woman of today addresses Cervantes, the brilliant inventor of Don Quixote and the eponymous novel, in a series of 15 letters sent to him over time. In a very free style, by turns ironic, scathing, comical, and tender, she draws up an inventory of all the misadventures that the literary giant of the picaresque novel inflicted on his heroic slayer of windmills; we owe our love of dreams to all the crackpots like him. The land of Don Quixote is our land.

JACQUELINE

Once upon a time there was a young man, a second-rate tailor who became an actor, then an overwhelmingly successful author. His muse was made of light tobacco. Mistress of all adversities, she embraced him passionately all night long then read his plays as he slept. 58 years after their first kiss, she flew up into the sky, like the smoke from her two daily packs of gold-tip filters. Since then, the inconsolable widower has been building a fragile monument made of paper, upon which her name is written twice.

LA FAMILIA GRANDE

THE FAMILIA GRANDE

This is the story of a big family who likes to debate, laugh, and dance, who likes the sun and summer. And the incandescent narrative of a woman who dares to confront the hydra, that reptile that strikes in silence and drowns memories, which forbids indulgence and spontaneity, which dances to the rhythm of fear, secrecy, and lies. But to vanquish the hydra, you need to know that you're a victim.

UNE ÉVIDENCE

A FOREGONE CONCLUSION

Reine, a design consultant, lives with Noé, her beloved 17-year-old son that she has raised on her own. As Noé is about to fly the nest, Reine realizes that she needs to reconsider her life. The new clients signed by her agency seem to be a godsend: an up-and-coming import company in Saint Malo, the city of sea merchants and buccaneers. Reine travels to Brittany to meet Pacôme, all rugged good looks and the soul of a traveler, and a mysterious second partner who will turn her life upside down.

EIFFEL

Not long after finishing his work on the Statue of Liberty, at the height of his career, Gustave Eiffel is invited by the French government to design something spectacular for the Universal Exhibition, to be held in Paris in 1889. Eiffel is focused on the project to build the metropolitan underground train system. But everything changes after a chance encounter with his childhood love, the beautiful Adrienne Bourgès. Their forbidden relationship gives him the inspiration that will alter the Parisian skyline forever.

SURFACE

SURFACE

A Paris suburb. A police operation goes wrong and Captain Noémie Chastain is shot in the head. She will survive, disfigured, a living reminder for her colleagues of the dangerous nature of their job. Months later in rural France, the tiniest and quietest precinct in the country, where Noémie has been sent "to recover." Her secret mission: write a report for the closure of the local police station. One morning, a keg is found in the lake near the village. Inside it, the body of a child that went missing 25 years ago...

ALGER, RUE DES BANANIERS

BÉATRICE COMMENGÉ

Through the destiny of one family, this radiant story, free of nostalgia, covers 132 years of conquest and colonization.

ALGIERS,
RUE DES BANANIERS

"As fate would have it, I was born on a bit of land whose history fits between two dates: 1830-1962. Like a body, French Algeria was born, lived, and died." By retracing the course of a family's history over 4 generations, Commengé subtly blends the memory of childhood and the history of French Algeria. As close as possible to the spirit of the places, she manages to give singular depth to the story of this episode from the past that is still so present.

On one hand, there's the violent and alcoholic one-legged colossus. On the other, the self-taught reader of Oriental spirituality with a frustrated artistic sensibility. When her father Janus dies, the daughter starts to go through his house, an unbelievable mess, a cave worthy of Ali Baba, which becomes an infinite network of signs and memories. One day, a letter arrives that tells her the whole truth about this beloved father whom, despite the social distance, she so closely resembles.

LA MUSE ROUGE

RED MUSE

Paris 1920. The atmosphere in the capital city is electric, between constant strikes and clashes between communists and anarchists on one side and royalists on the other. Given the context, the successive murders of several prostitutes aren't likely to make headlines. Until it isn't a lady of the night, but a client, an official representative of the Republic of China, who is found dead in a brothel.

SOLEIL AMER

A BITTER SUN

At the end of the 1950s in Algeria, Naja has been raising her three daughters alone ever since her husband Saïd left to work in a factory in France. The family eventually joins him and moves to a housing project in the suburbs of Paris. Naja gets pregnant, but due to their financial instability, they cannot keep the child. Saïd's brother, who married a rich but sterile French woman, offers to adopt the baby at birth. On the day of the delivery, Naja brings two little boys into the world, who will be separated in the utmost secrecy...

AS RICH AS THE KING

1990s, Casablanca. Sarah has nothing and when she graduates from high school, she meets Driss, who has everything. She decides to seduce him; she wants to marry him. Her race to him is a journey across Casa and its tensions: the rich people who take up all the space, the joints smoked next to their pools, the prostitutes having abortions in backrooms, falsely scandalized whispers, harassed maids, and the desire to go elsewhere. But elsewhere is far away.

TO YOU

It is not just grief and loneliness that have tormented Tara since her husband's death. Inside her, something is rising and rumbling like a wave. It is the resurgence of a story she thought had been stifled, it is the reappearance of the one she once was. A girl with another name, who liked to laugh and dance, who believed in eternal childhood until she was caught up by her country's demons.

} LA DÉFINITION DU BONHEUR

THE DEFINITION OF HAPPINESS

Two women: Clarisse, who is voracious for life and constantly in love, has carried the harbinger of disaster within herself from the beginning. Eve vacillates between reason and madness, all while building a deep and stable relationship with her husband. One lives in Paris, the other in New York. Unbeknownst to them, a mysterious link binds them. Through the intertwining of their fates, this intense novel paints the fresco of an era and questions women's relationship to the body and desire, to love, to maternity, to aging, and to happiness.

At the chateau, there's the father, an old French film star. There's the young wife, former Miss Côte d'Azur, totally devoted to her family and world peace. Then there are the twins, the half-sister. As for the money, it's been prudently set aside in offshore accounts. At the chateau, there's also the steward, the nanny, the coach, the cook, the gardener, the driver. We'd better keep an eye on them. Especially if air traffic comes to a grinding standstill and our offshore accounts are suddenly dangerously far away.

VÉRIFICATION DE LA PORTE OPPOSÉE

CHECKING THE OPPOSITE DOOR

This book brings together two collections of short stories published as "Short Stories from the East" and "Allah's Gardens." Whether the author is describing post-Soviet Russia or the ravages of Islamic fanaticism, he is actually talking – indulgently, melancholically, and humorously – about the lack of comprehension between the East and West in particular, and different cultures in general. The previously unpublished short story, "The E19 Castaways," a dire Christmas tale, reveals the cynicism of our world.

A saga from the 1930s, this novel tells of a luminous Algeria and the journey of a strong woman, an endearing figure in a family's mythology.

A REMARKABLE WOMAN

In the joyful echo of the Roaring Twenties, Mime and Marius are young and in love. They have everything to be happy. When their little girl suddenly dies, the couple is devastated. But despite the sorrow, Mime moves forward, going through the 1940s, the vagaries of her marriage, the unfulfilled dreams, and this world war that is devastating, exhausting and starving all the way to Algeria. Having become a teacher, she instills the values of fraternity and equality in her students. Freedom comes from knowledge!

SAND AND SNOW

A story told to the rhythm of the ocean's waves: the Grande Dune, excursions to Cap Ferret, the boat, the little train, pine needles, oysters, the exhilaration of words and wine, friendship, dolls, fishing trip with one's father, boat trips, and also the city of Kyoto under the snow on December 31... Since dialing 911, the manager of a convenience store in Milwaukee, hasn't slept: his nightmares are filled with black faces screaming, "I can't breathe!"

} L'AMI

THE FRIEND

It is an ordinary Saturday morning. Thierry is about to go to the river when he hears a commotion outside: police cars, an ambulance, men in helmets dashing out of the forest. In a state of shock, Thierry and his wife learn that their neighbors have been arrested. The same neighbors that are so helpful, with whom they've shared so many happy moments? How could he not have known that his only friend was the embodiment of evil? Thierry has no choice but to break open his shell and face his own long-buried past.

UNDER A SHARED SUN

It seems like nothing can disturb the peace in the Grand Duchy of Éponne. Taking in a migrant and writing a book about his experiences strikes the high-profile journalist Jean-Jean-Marc Féron as a great idea: he just has to select the ideal candidate. Elsewhere in town, a few friends get together for a group writing session. Their lampoon is intended to spice up the public debate. Diane Meur excels in studying the byways of human minds and lives, revealing surprising truths and connections between her characters.

WEEDS

Outside, the gunfire intensifies. The children in the schoolyard wait for their parents, tears pouring down their cheeks. The narrator of this first chapter, a 6-year-old girl, is the only one not crying: she is just happy that her "giant" is coming to get her earlier than usual. Clutching one of his huge fingers in her tiny hand, she is sure to make it through the chaos safely. Never complain. Hide your fears. Be quiet. Leave home after home behind. This child born in Beirut during the civil war is used to it all.

SAGES FEMMES

WISE WOMEN

Marie is haunted by her daughter's question, "Where is the mother?" Then, on the base of a statue of the Virgin Mary, she discovers the inscription "Now and at the hour of our birth." She decides to explore the mysterious invitation. From then on, she tries to untangle the skein of her heritage. It suddenly becomes necessary for her to find out more about the lives of her foremothers who, since the mid-19th century, gave birth to little girls outside of wedlock and were forced to earn a living by needlework.

A baby with disabilities turns the whole family dynamic upside down and redefines his siblings' lives.

} S'ADAPTER

ADAPTING

This is the story of an eternal baby, a maladjusted child who creates an invisible boundary between his family and others. It is the story of his place within this deeply shaken family. The eldest child connects with him, and loses himself in the process. His sister develops feelings of disgust and anger. And lastly, the baby of the family who comes later, after his disabled brother has died and the older two have left, lives in the shadow of family ghosts, but brings the hope of reconciliation.

CLAIRE BEREST

A cop who collects orchids in his Paris apartment. Mysterious, unauthorized artistic performances in the city's major museums... What if crime were an art?

} ARTIFICES

ARTIFICE

Why has the exemplary police officer Abel Bac been suspended? Who illegally took a horse into the Pompidou Center? Who put copies of a newspaper featuring the same horse outside Abel's apartment? This series of events will lead him to Mila, a mysterious artist who stirs up crowds and the world of contemporary art with her confrontational performances. The suspended police officer tentatively investigates, helped – whether he wants it or not – by Camille, a concerned colleague, and Elsa, a neighbor who turns up one evening blind drunk.

ADRIEN BOSCO

in the Spanish Civil War.*

COLUMN

In August 1936, at the beginning of the Spanish Civil War, the philosopher Simone Weil, who is not yet 30, joins the Durutti Column. During an attack on the Ebro River, she injures herself by putting her foot in boiling oil. She is brought back to France on September 25. From the fragments of the mystery of a brief life, such as the commitment that refuses fascism and the murder of a 16-year-old Falangist, Adrien Bosc writes Simone Weil's intense and tragic story.

SAVENGERS

Raphaëlle is a forest warden living alone, miles from civilization. Out in the wild, daily life is fraught with dangers. And there's no cell coverage. One evening, Raphaëlle is shaken to discover bear prints outside her door. But when human footprints appear, she realizes that the true predator is even more sinister... Savengers plunges us into a world of illegal poaching and sexual violence, as Raphaëlle's calling to protect the forest turns her into the prey. But this gritty eco-warrior won't go down without a fight.
