ARABESQUES

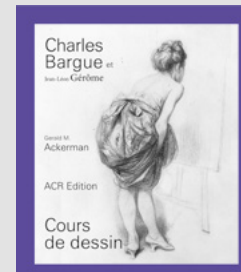

DECORATIVE ART IN MOROCCO

After a brief historical survey to identify the specificity of Islamic art in Morocco, we study the three main families of decoration in architecture: calligraphy, floral arabesque, and, above all, geometric decoration, which provides the most original and in-depth material in the book. The technical presentation is based on drawings and is accompanied by numerous photographs taken at Morocco's most beautiful sites (monuments, royal palaces, cities). For the pleasure of the eyes... and the mind.

CHARLES BARGUE:

DRAWING COURSE

The course consists of a set of nearly 200 masterful lithographs, which were all subjects intended to be copied by drawing students before they took up life drawing. This work will therefore be of interest to artists, art students and art historians, but also to amateurs and collectors of drawings. The reader will also discover the work and the life of a master who has been neglected up until now: Charles Bargue.

LYNNE THORNTON

An invitation to travel.

LES ORIENTALISTES PEINTRES VOYAGEURS

THE ORIENTALISTS: TRAVELING PAINTERS

With the development of transportation, the painters of the 19th century succumbed to the mirages of the Orient. They brought back images flooded with sunlight, full of color and richness. Lynne Thornton, a specialized expert, has studied nearly 150 painters, from Delacroix to Ziem, as well as many little-known masters. An essential reference for collectors and a wonderful invitation to travel.

THE SECRET CODES OF MUSIC

WHAT THE GREAT COMPOSERS REVEAL AND HIDE FROM US

The history of music and the famous works of the greatest composers contain many secrets: religious, esoteric, romantic... Jean-Louis Bachelet reveals to us the hidden meaning of numerous masterpieces, by drawing on the very sources of their genesis. How and why could Wagner's works drive people crazy? Which secret rhythms in Debussy's music create that feeling of serenity? How did Shostakovich intend to terrify Nazi troops?

Inexhaustible and subversive, this punk rock pioneer, musician, photographer, and painter, dubbed the "punk poet laureate," has never made a secret of her fascination for Arthur Rimbaud and his world. Bound by the same creative energy, these two "image-makers" are celebrated in the pages of this exceptional book. Patti Smith embraces the world of Arthur Rimbaud and turns it into a space for experimentation, a mutual exchange between images, prose, and poetry.

MANIFESTE INCERTAIN 7 :
EMILY DICKINSON, MARINA TSETAËVA,
L'IMMENSE POÉSIE

UNCERTAIN MANIFESTO 7

EMILY DICKINSON, MARINA
TSETAEVA, IMMENSE POETRY

At first glance, Emily Dickinson and Marina Tsvetaeva couldn't be more different: one a recluse in Amherst in the Connecticut valley, while the other was born in Moscow and is studying in Europe. Through their heroic lives, Pajak evokes two literary trajectories that survived indifference, hostility, and even censorship. As women, they refused to comply with the behaviors and rules assigned to their gender. Each in her own way, they shook up the literary order to assert a new poetic art.

} Phébus www.libellagroup.com} DANS L'OMBRE DE SA SŒUR :
LES DERNIERS SECRETS DE COLETTE

IN HER SISTER'S SHADOW

COLETTE'S LAST SECRETS

Françoise Cloarec lifts the veil on the tragic fate of Juliette Robineau-Duclos, Colette's half-sister, who was victimized by both her father and her husband. Colette was light, free, independent, strong, beautiful, and loved. Juliette was the opposite: shadows, submission, ugliness, and weakness. This richly documented psychological investigation helps us to better understand Colette's work. But it also reveals that there is never light without shadows; someone always pays the price for another's glory.

NARRATIVITÉ : COMMENT LES IMAGES RACONTENT DES HISTOIRES

NARRATIVITY
HOW IMAGES TELL STORIES

From Europe to Asia, by way of the Himalayan and Tibetan world, whether in the Lives of Buddha or the Lives of Jesus, the Kings of Hells, or visits to imperial parks, images “tell a story.” But this story is often impossible to read without the cultural or historical baggage; the images aren’t enough and there is a fascinating gap between the images and the story, which this work attempts to fill through detailed and precise investigations.
