THE AUTISTIC PERSON'S MANUAL

In this book, the authors take stock of the progress made in research and clinical practice, and provide unvarnished answers to the many questions that autistic people and those around them may have about autism and neurodiversity. Designed to be a reliable and concrete companion, this manual places at its center, through numerous testimonies, autistic people, their singularities, their questions, their experiences, and their visions of the world.

THE CAREFREE HOURS

Summer 1938. Pauline Kermadec and Nathalie de Noailles grew up together. At the age of 20, despite their different personalities, they are inseparable. In a world on the brink of the most devastating war humanity has ever known, these two young women must find the strength to finish growing up, learn to love, and protect those they cherish. What resources will they draw upon to arm themselves against the years of infamy to come?
